CROSBY S. NOYES Editor.

The Evening Star has a regular, permanent thereof. That is why chairmen of committees are excluded from the benefits of Mr. Brown's resolution. If the Senators would vote as they feel inclined this resolution would be adopted; but dread of the disapproval of the public will influence votes enough to defeat it. Mr. Orth's raid on the Speaker of the House terminated the other day as most persons thought it would end. There is abundant reason for a revolution; but, in his present position, with a sore head prominently in view, Mr. Orth is not the man to lead the revolt. If one of the gentlemen who drew the big prizes in the Speaker's lottery-say the chairman of the committee on ways and means, or the head of the committee on appropriations,would give the movement the influence of his voice and vote, perhaps it might have a better chance for success. The very respectable vote in favor of Mr. Orth's proposition shows that a good many men in as well as out of Congress think that the Speaker has too much power as things go. He can sufficiently control the legislation of the country MARKED DOWN. by recognizing or refusing to recognize gentlemen in Europe wields so despotic a sway. The Baltimore school authorities are trying to devise some adequate plan for notifying the teachers of the schools when one session of the schools should be held on rainy days. The present system of sending messenger company boys is objectionable. Many plans have been proposed, but the one most favored is the use of an electric apparatus similar to the electric bell arrangement in hotels, with a knob placed in the secretary's office to communicate through wires with bells in the various schools. As the schools of Washington have a similar need, the progress of the Baltimore experiment will be watched with interest.
